

One Artist's Ramblings

April 2013

The Spring Show has been hung, and a goodly number showed up for the reception. Once again, I am impressed with the variety and the quality of the artworks submitted. If you weren't able to make it to the opening reception, please do plan to stop in at the Aldrich and view it at your leisure.

At the reception, I was asked whether there were any workshops being planned. I had to answer that there weren't any on the schedule yet, but I would be happy to see someone set one up for all to enjoy. As a volunteer organization, we all have our strong and weak points. My weak point is organizing workshops! Fortunately, there are others who are more adept at that activity, and I look to them for assistance in getting such an undertaking organized.

I am still intent on organizing an art trip later this spring. I will keep you posted on that. I am currently thinking of a trip to the Bryan Art Gallery in Jeffersonville. All members will be notified if and when that will take place.

For those who have suggestions for other activities, let me give you some words of advice. Suggesting something to me and expecting something to happen is not the best approach. The best approach involves YOU taking the initiative to make your idea reality. Your fellow members and I will be grateful for your initiative and efforts!

Our next meeting will feature a talk by local artist Bill Brauer. I am told that he addressed our group some years ago, but that was before I became a member. I am familiar with some of his work, however, and can predict an interesting presentation. Come and hear Bill at our 10 April meeting. I hope to see you all then.
